I think I should have chosen to become an eligible bachelor. He certainly holds trump cards in the game of life in this part of the country at any rate, where parents with a family of girls are dead anxious to get them married off and where eligible mates are as rare as butterflies in a turnip patch. He has the entree to the very best homes in the city if he is in any ways eligible; invitations to dinners and dances are showered upon the fortunate victim of maneuvering mammas and designing daughters galore. Theatre parties, picnics and excursions of all sorts are planned in order that he may be thrown in the company of some sweet, innocent young thing who plays her hand in the matrimonial game with the skilled cunning of a veteran gambler.
